

Keeping Busy

It is important that we keep busy physically and mentally during this time. Here are a few ways that you can keep active alongside the activities on your home learning grid.

- Daily PE lesson with Joe Wicks on his Youtube channel. (Monday—Friday at 9am) This is great way to start the day!
- Cosmic Yoga—search this on Youtube to find different workouts. This is great for the children both mentally and physically and allows the children to have some time to be calm.
- The Maths Factor—This is an app that can currently be downloaded for free created by Carol Vorderman. A great way to make Maths fun.
- The popular children's author David Walliams is also releasing a free daily audio book for the next 30 days. <https://www.worldofdavidwalliams.com/elevenses/>

Other things you can do

- Have a go at creating a rainbow picture to say thank you to all of the people helping our country.
- Practise telling the time and see if you can create a daily timetable. Work on 15 minute intervals and then move on to 5 minute intervals when your child feels confident to tell the time.
- Get creative and create some shadow drawings. Put a piece of paper with a toy on by a window and get the children to draw round the shadow.
