Dear Parents and Carers,

Following recent messages circulating on social media about a trend referred to as “Red vs Blue,” we would like to make parents aware and offer reassurance.

This trend involves young people encouraging others to meet and confront those from an opposing group/school. These activities are often organised online and sometimes filmed or shared on social media. While we have no reason to believe that any pupils at our school are involved, we feel it is important to keep families informed.

The safety and wellbeing of all children is at the heart of everything we do. We would ask parents and carers to please remain vigilant.

In school, our PSHE curriculum includes learning about personal safety, responsible behaviour and understanding the risks associated with online activity. We also work closely with local partners and agencies to address any issues affecting young people in the community. Our PCSO has visited the school and will continue to support us where needed.

We will always address any concerns that may impact the safety of our pupils and will continue to work with local partners to ensure our school community remains safe and supportive.

If you become aware of anything related to this trend or have any concerns, please contact the school or police so that we can respond appropriately.

Thank you for your continued support.

Yours sincerely,

L. Fellows
Headteacher
